

Career of the Month: TV, Film and Radio Director

 Minimum qualifications
an undergraduate degree

 Typical salary
(with experience)
£20 - 40k

 Competition for places
High

 Demand for this role
Medium

Directors manage the process of creating films, radio and TV programmes, including commissioning projects and overseeing schedules.

Related interests:

TV, Radio & Performing Arts

Useful skills and qualities:

Highly motivated

Confident

A good communicator

Full of initiative

A natural leader

A good problem solver

Creative

A team player

A good negotiator

Money motivated

Things to consider

Well-paid

Working your way up the career path from runner to floor manager to director can result in a very lucrative job.

National/international acclaim

This role provides the satisfaction and excitement of seeing your work in the public sphere.

Irregular work/job insecurity

Directors are often employed on a freelance or contract basis, which can lead to job instability.

Creative freedom

As a director, you have the say on the final cut of a production.

Long hours/overtime

You may have to work extreme hours to meet production deadlines.

Learn about more careers at <https://indigo.careers/>